

A RIGHTEOUS LYNCHING.

A Murderer Hanged by a Tennessee Mob.

FLORENCE, TENN., May 1.—George Ware, colored, was lynched by an infuriated mob at Muscle Shoals, Saturday night. Ware had murdered a white boy, aged twelve, to secure a small sum of money which had just been paid the boy. The amount was $12. The boy's struggle for life was a pitiful spectacle, and was witnessed by a man on the opposite shore of the river from where the murder was perpetrated. After robbing the boy, the brute murderer threw him into the river eight times, but the boy swam back to shore. The murderer finally seized the boy, tied him, and beat out his brains with a stone, and threw him in the river again. Ware was arrested immediately after the murder occurring on the 20th ult., and on Saturday night the mob visited the jail, carried the jailer's wife to another house, then took the prisoner and hung him to a beam in the depot building and riddled his body with bullets. The negro confessed.

A SOUTHERN CYCLONE

Attended by Loss of Life and Great Destruction.

MERIDEN, LA., May 1.—A report has just reached here of a terrible cyclone that visited the parish seven or eight miles above this place. The length of the track was fifteen miles, and the wind blew with such terrific force that neither house, tree nor any obstruction was left. Rails from fences were blown for miles, some stock killed, Irby White's dwelling was demolished and only one roof was left on the place out of twenty-four. One negro man and several children were injured. The quarters on S. J. Harrell's place were utterly demolished, and forty acres of heavy timbered land not a tree is left standing. The fences on the place were blown away, not a vestige of corn or fodder left. Mrs. Youngblood was seriously, and several children were slightly, hurt. Several negroes were blown across a field, but uninjured. No one was killed or wounded, but few of the dwellings being directly in the track of the tornado.

Two Sisters in Court at a Murder Trial. One the Wife of the Murderer, the Other Widow of His Victim.

ATLANTA, GA., May 1.—The trial and conviction of James Stringer in the Lumpkin Superior Court had some dramatic features. The evidence was mainly that of the wife of the murdered man, who testified that Stringer and two or three other men came to the house at 9 o'clock at night and called him out. Having heard of threats against him he refused to go, but she went to the door to parley with them, and he endeavored to escape by another door. Opening it he made a noise, which attracted their attention. They ran around the house in time to see him leap from the door, and his wife, likewise rushing in that door, saw the stranger raise a pistol and fire, and saw her husband reel and the crowd follow him off. The trial attracted much attention, ladies crowding the court-room. The jury found the prisoner guilty. When Judge Bates pronounced the sentence the prisoner, who had been stoical and unmoved throughout the whole, rose and asked leave of the Court to say a few words to the wife of Gaddis, who had been the principal witness against him. The Judge refused to do so, but told him, he might say anything he desired to come in a respectable and proper manner. At this he broke down utterly and wept bitterly, but offered no remarks. Stringer and Gaddis were both young, and married sisters, each having been married but a short time. While the young widow, with her little babe at her breast, sat on the stand and swore to Stringer's guilt she looked straight into the eyes of her young sister, a girl almost a child, slender and helpless, who sat by the side of her guilty husband to hear her own sister swear his life away. It was a scene to make the stoutest heart stand still with horror.

A Very Poor House.

SEDALIA, Mo., May 1.—The Sedalia Democrat has discovered and unearthed a state of affairs in the county poorhouse of this county that rivals in its horrors the Tewkesbury Almshouse revelations. The Poor Farm is about twelve miles from the city, and is seldom visited by any one. There are twenty-one insane, idiotic and bed-ridden patients in it, and the description of their filth, their sufferings and disease is simply sickening and disgraceful to any Christian community. The sick are without attention, and sometimes without necessary food.

Smallpox in Indiana.

GREENSBURG, IND., May 1.—Considerable excitement at present exists at and near Westport, in the southern part of this county, over the discovery of several cases of smallpox in that vicinity. T. J. Burns was in Illinois a short time since, and was exposed. After returning home he was taken sick, and before it was known what was ailing him many of his friends and neighbors had called to see him, and seven cases are already reported. No deaths have yet occurred.

Guiteau's Miserable Brain.

The Execution of the Assassin and Judicial Murderer.

So Says a Report of the American Association for the Protection of the Insane.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Unless the severe physicians engaged in the movement are dissuaded from their purpose at the last moment, the Guiteau controversy will be revived at the meeting of the American Medical Association, now near at hand in a manner to attract wider attention and to insure larger publicity than has yet been given to the insanity issue. The death of Dr. George M. Beard, who, as the representative of the American Association for the Protection of the Insane, was expected to open the discussion by reading a paper on the "Medico-Legal Questions Involved in the Case of the Late Charles J. Guiteau."

TEMPORARILY DISARRANGED THE PLANS of the little knot of able men who have interested themselves in obtaining a reversal of the popular, or at least the medical, judgment on the question whether Guiteau was properly convicted and executed. That is, was he insane, and should he have been so adjudged; and, if insane, was his mania of such a type as within the meaning of the law to render him irresponsible for his acts? Was he, in other words, a subject for the lunatic asylum or for the hangman—which? In addition to the discussion of the strictly medical issues involved, as the official and representative authority of the profession of the United States, the American Medical Association will be asked to pass a resolution or resolutions defining the nature of expert evidence, the manner of its presentation in legal tribunals, and the rights of physicians in courts at law. The death of Dr. Beard appears to have devolved the leadership of the movement upon Dr. Edward C. Spitzka, than whom, though the father of Dr. Beard by some years, no more persistent, active and aggressive leader could be named; but it has the support of many experts, among whom may be mentioned Dr. W. W. Hoiding, Superintendent of the Government Asylum at Washington; Dr. Korman, the author of the recent paper on "manic a diem," presented in "Contributions to Psychiatry," and of many other distinguished luminaries, such as Arnold, Shakespeare and Kennell.

There is no one left, in Dr. Spitzka's opinion, for the men who have persistently urged that the execution of an insane man or murder in deference to popular prejudice and clamor was a national disgrace to make their view of the case fairly heard, except to make an appeal to the American Medical Association, and to put themselves on the record in the transactions of that body. The idea has gone forth that Guiteau's brain was not seriously diseased, and that such changes from the healthy condition as were actually discovered were of the kind that indicate insanity. However, according to Dr. Spitzka, the report was really misquoted in addition to being misinterpreted; and thus the press of the United States was committed to statements that have never been corrected. But Professor J. W. S. Arnold, Dr. E. O. Shakespeare and Dr. J. C. McConnell—appointed by Dr. Lamb to make the examination—

REALLY DID SAY

A conclusion was: Your committee have no hesitation whatever in affirming the existence of unquestionable evidence of decided and settled disease of the minute blood-vessels in numerous minute diffused areas, accompanied by alterations in the cell elements in the specimens of the brain submitted to their examination. While the lesions were most marked in the striated body and the frontal section of the cerebral convolutions, yet they very diffusely pervaded all portions of the organ.

"THE FACTS STATED BY THE COMMITTEE," said Dr. Spitzka, "indicated that disease dated back for many years. The lesions were diffuse, not local; involved the membranes, the convolutions, the deep-seated centres, and the white substance; and the nerve cells showed the results of long continued and slowly produced disturbance, with an extensive degree of atrophy established in the layers of the convolutions." In the presentation of the subject before the American Medical Association the interpretation of such facts as those described by the committee will be referred to such European authorities as Griesinger, Parechappe, Kraft-Ebing, Eminghaus and Kindelsch. Able members of the profession, of all shades of opinion as to the merits of the case, have not hesitated to say that the examination of experts on the Guiteau trial forms one of the most disgraceful episodes in the history of our medical jurisprudence, and that such a seal of disapproval should be put upon it by the collective voice of medical men as to prevent the future occurrence of such spectacles.

The mere reading of a paper on the subject is consequently but an entering wedge for the gentlemen engaged in the movement. They will ask for a resolution to the effect that our method of examining expert witnesses ought to be reformed, in view of the facts shown by a calm review of the facts in the Guiteau case, and for the formation of a committee to examine into the subject of medical jurisprudence, expose its anomalies and suggest how to correct them. That the movement will cause

A STORMY DISCUSSION

Is evident from the intense feeling entertained on both sides; but nearly a year has passed since the death sentence of Guiteau was executed, and possibly a larger proportion of medical men may be ready to view the issue of his irresponsibility dispassionately than was the case six months ago. It is asserted by Dr. Spitzka and others that a complete reaction in public opinion has taken place since the sentence was carried out, and that the majority of physicians whose opinions are worth anything on the subject are now outspoken in the belief that the man was profoundly insane and was improperly executed. A few days will tell.

The Southern Cyclone.

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 1.—The latest from the cyclone near Belton says: On the outskirts of the tornado hail of an extraordinary size fell like showers of grape. Hail stones the size of a man's fist were found in great numbers, and many even larger. It was not uncommon to pick up hailstones five inches in diameter from Temple to within three miles of Belton. Much stock was killed. One party of seven took refuge in a cellar just in time to escape being carried away with the house, which was lifted up bodily and carried 400 yards in the air, when it fell and was dashed to pieces.

Chas. Frankfort, wife and son are among the additional killed.

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—A Times Special telegraphed from a special of today says: A terrible cyclone visited this parish seven or eight miles above here on Sunday from northern to southern. The length of the track was ten miles.

The wind was of such terrific force that a horse, tree or any obstruction was uprooted. Dr. F. Johnson's gun-house and other buildings are blown away. Wm. Taylor's place was badly wrecked, and S. E. Dwyer's place torn to pieces. Cattle and horses were utterly demolished, while the rails from the fences were blown for miles.

That Settles It.

STEEBENVILLE, O., May 1.—Justice May has decided the Scott liquor law unconstitutional. A saloon keeper selling without the written consent of the landlord being arrested, his defense was that the law was unconstitutional because it impaired existing contracts. The Justice gave the opinion that the law was unconstitutional because the law was unequal and impaired existing contracts.

Another Mine Horror.

ASHLAND, PA., May 1.—An explosion of gas in the Keystone Colliery killed August Mosher, Patrick Reagan, and Andrew Jones, and seriously wounded Charles Tyler and Cooney Watters. The explosion was caused by the sliding of a pillar, pushing a large volume of gas into contact with the lamps of the miners. The force of the explosion was terrific.

The Type-Setting Wonder.

A Machine Which is Causing Alarm to Compositors.

But Efforts Not Entirely Unsuccessful Until a Sheets-Attachment is Completed.

MILWAUKEE, May 1.—The previous account regarding the wonderful capabilities of Benton's Type-Setting Machine have caused the deepest interest and anxiety among the working printers, and as fuller information is obtained that anxiety is not lessened. Among printers here to-day the report of the invention has aroused a great deal of interest. The invention is the production of self-spacing type, which will not only greatly facilitate all kinds of composition, but will make correct spacing a certainty in all kinds of work. Experiments made with a number of compositors show that they can set up as much matter with this new type in seven and one-half hours as can be set in ten with common type. In other words, the invention will from the start reduce the cost of composition 25 per cent. The principle of the invention is this: Every character of the alphabet in each of the different fonts is made on a body which is a multiple of a certain unit of space. For instance, let the width of the lower case "i" be this unit of space. The lower case "a" will then be equal to two of these spaces, or twice as wide; the lower case "m" three times, and the round characters, such as "o," "e" and "u," one and one-half times as large, and so on through the alphabet. The spaces and quads, instead of being a certain proportion of the body, as formerly, are the same size as the lower case "i," and multiples of it. In thus changing the units of space none of the characters are changed in appearance.

Sending Dynamite by Mail.

LONDON, May 1.—It is reported to-day that a letter has been received by Mr. Forster, Secretary of Ireland, containing explosives. The parcel came through the mail, but its character was detected in time to prevent it being opened in such a way as to injure any one. It was stopped by a clerk in the postoffice, whose attention was attracted to the peculiar appearance of the paper and whose suspicions were strengthened by the address. Orders have been issued to watch Mr. Forster's mail very closely.

France.

PARIS, May 1.—The Journal Des Debats says that a defensive triple alliance is useless. It most emphatically declares that France does not intend to attack anybody; on the contrary, that she means peace and will do her best to secure it for Europe.

England.

LONDON, May 1.—The Dean of Windsor is dead.

LONDON, May 1.—The improved facilities for troop transportation now being organized by the Government attract attention as probably indicating a danger of the necessity for a more active policy in Ireland, although the London journals which receive information from official sources do not make the proposed military change good to Ireland, but allude to it in the following fashion:

The War Office will shortly order a considerable increase of the Land Transport Corps, both in England and Ireland and in other countries where troops are on duty. The fact remains that the improved service is begun first and only in Ireland, where the Ministry seems to think it may be needed at any day.

Egyptian Troubles.

CAIRO, May 1.—The excitement over the riots at Port Said Sunday and Monday, has spread to Upper Egypt, and trouble is feared both here and at Alexandria. The authorities may occur at any time. The feeling is very strong against foreigners, and the fellahs in some way manage to keep well informed as to the movements of the False Prophet, Elchudi in the Sudan, and as to his success and reverses.

Enacted Security Supplement by Fresh Alarm.

BERLIN, May 1.—Private advices and press dispatches alike indicate much less fear than has heretofore prevailed concerning any sensational tragedy likely to accompany the coronation ceremonies a fortnight hence. Friends of the Czar and the Emperor at the German court say that the Majesties are both in excellent health and good spirits, and not only have no personal fear, but are satisfied that the arrangements as perfected preclude any real danger of successful interference by the nihilists. If they have any apprehensions of danger or personal violence, they have at least been carefully concealed from persons who certainly possess their friendly confidence. All the really efficient leaders and dangerous members of the revolutionary party have been seized, and are now harmless, dead, or in prison. The Chief of Police of Moscow has greatly increased his staff of detectives, and all strangers arriving at Moscow are subjected to the strictest surveillance until the authorities are satisfied that there is some legitimate reason for their presence.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 1.—A conspiracy has been discovered among the military officers stationed on garrison duty here, and seven officers of various ranks were to-day placed under arrest. It is said that nihilistic documents were found in their possession, together with plans of the Kremlin and Winter Palace, which are supposed to be connected with some scheme for destroying the Czar's life during the coronation ceremonies. The authorities have discovered a vast and well planned military conspiracy to overthrow the Romanoffs. High military officers are said to be implicated, and the ramifications of the conspiracy run through various grades of the army. Numerous arrests have been made, causing tremendous excitement in military and political circles. It is reported also that the peasantry have a knowledge of the military conspiracy and favor it. All classes are excited at the summary arrests which the police are making in every part of the city.

Deputy Commissioner Roger is also making a fight for the place.

FORTY SHOTS

And Only One Man Killed—Another Kentucky Affray.

McKENNEY, KY., May 1.—A regular battle occurred in a drinking-house at this place yesterday. Bob, Tom and Oo Smith, James Haffey and Jim Yocum, on one side, and Jim, Pete and Bill Cain on the other, met in a saloon, when Haffey provoked a row by reminding the Cains that the Smiths had assisted in their arrest when a reward was offered for them. A general shooting and cutting then commenced, and it is said that fully forty shots were fired. After the melee it was found that Bell Cain had been shot through the head; Pete Cain was slightly shot in the head and cut in the back with a hatchet; Jim Cain, cut in the shoulder, and Bob Smith cut in the head with a rock and shot in the mouth. Hupley ran as soon as the trouble commenced, and Yocum got off before an officer arrived. The Smiths were captured and held over to an extraordinary trial to be held on Thursday. It was a hard crowd on both sides, the Cains especially, they having been before the courts repeatedly.

A Supreme Court Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The decision of the Supreme Court, in the case of the Parkersburg & Ohio River Transportation Company vs. City of Parkersburg, is of interest to all Ohio river towns and cities that have wharf fees. The decision, which was delivered by Justice Bradley, was that United States courts cannot protect steamboats against exorbitant charges for wharfage until Congress, by legislation, regulates such charges under the commerce clauses of the Constitution. Justice Harlan only dissented upon the grounds that no local authorities, in absence of legislation by Congress, could impose wharfage charges upon boats running upon navigable waters of the country under the license of the United States, except to the extent of just and reasonable compensation for the use of such improved commercial facilities; that when the charges exceeded that limit they constituted obstructive and burdens upon commerce, which the court could remove or prevent as readily as they could by injunction, or other process, prevent the construction of bridges across navigable streams such as the Ohio and Mississippi, erected without authority of Congress, and which strictly interfere with free navigation.

Chicago Wire Fight.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The Western Union Telegraph Company has filed a bill in the Federal Court here to-day to enjoin the city authorities from severing wires and removing poles of the company, under the ordinance which goes into effect to-day, and thus avert the action taken against the Mutual Union Company two months ago. The company asserts that it has acquired vested rights in the city, and that the theory of underground telegraphy is at present impracticable.

Heavy Suit Brought.

COLUMBUS, O., May 1.—A big suit for the recovery of a large amount of money was entered in the Franklin Common Pleas to-day. The plaintiff is Judge Bates, and the defendant Alfred D. Kelley, the former asking judgment for about $25,000, which he alleges to be due him for money loaned Kelley at different times. The alleged transactions cover a period extending from 1879 to 1881.

DYNAMITE.
Its Invention and History, and How It is Made.

Dynamite is one of the many products or combinations of nitro-glycerine, and is about thirteen times as powerful as gunpowder. The discovery of this dangerous and potent explosive was made in 1846 by Ascanio Sobrero, then a pupil in the laboratory of Pelouze, the eminent French Chemist, who devoted twenty years of his life to the investigation of the chemistry of oils and fats.

Dynamite was patented in the United States May 26, 1868 the patent being granted to Alfred Nobel, of Hamburg, Germany, assignor to John Bandmann, of San Francisco. It consists of a combination of nitro-glycerine with a substance of absorbent power, such, for instance, as fullers' earth or rotten stone. By this composition the explosiveness of the nitro-glycerine is controlled, as it were, and the compound is capable of withstanding all the ordinary dangers of transportation, while at the same time its explosive power is not lessened. The process of manufacture is very simple. You take a certain proportion of nitric and sulphuric acid and mix them with certain other proportions of glycerine, which is the essence of fat, to make the nitro glycerine. To make dynamite you only need to mix nitro-glycerine with some absorbent material—fullers' earth is the best—to have dynamite.

An Old Letter from the First Kentucky.

Kentucky State Journal.

The following is a true copy of a letter written by Daniel Boone in 1780 to Thomas Hart. The original is the property of Mr. Henry Clay, of Louisville, and was found among the papers which have come down through several generations as heirlooms in the Clay family. The letter is written on heavy parchment, not ruled, the folding and water seal show that it went without envelop. The orthography is not bad, but the orthography is, as will be seen, not the most perfect, though there will be found many Kentuckians whose education has been less neglected than was Boone's, who purchased would not greatly improve upon it. The capitals are his, and there is no punctuation. The letter is addressed to Col. Thomas Hart, Haghers Town, and is as follows:

JULIUS CÆSAR

Opening Night of Cincinnati
Dramatic Festival

Seven Thousand Delighted People
Attendance—Standing Room at a Premium

CINCINNATI, O., May 1.—Promptly at 7:30 last evening the mammoth drop curtain arose on the initial performance of the Dramatic Festival. Fully 7,000 people were present, all of the seats being occupied, and standing room was at a premium. The seating capacity of Music Hall is 6,000, and every seat was taken long before the doors opened. Those who were not supplied with tickets were of course compelled to stand. It is safe to place the number of these unfortunates at 1,000. While there were many elegant toilets visible, it was by no means a full dress audience, such as the Open Festivals never fail to bring out. Notwithstanding the noticeable absence of display in dress, the wealth and culture of the city were present, and perhaps two thousand strangers, many of whom had come hundreds of miles to witness the greatest dramatic event this country has ever seen. It is extremely doubtful if Shakespeare ever dreamed of having some of his plays produced under such auspicious circumstances. The largest and best arranged hall in the country, the most elaborate scenery, a constellation of stars, and a large and appreciative audience, combined to make the event not alone memorable but historical. Even an attempt at a description of the scene as presented would tax the pen of an artist, and require more space than is contained in this paper. Suffice to say, that the originators and managers have scored a triumph second to no event of an amusement nature, and they have every reason to be proud of the achievement. Many of the public spirited people of Cincinnati displayed flags in honor of the occasion, and the city today presented something of a gala-day appearance. The Queen City is never wanting in matters of this kind, and the success of the Festival was assured on the day of its birth. It is among the possibilities that the Dramatic Festivals will be continued from year to year, and in that event a new era in the theatrical world would be the result. The greatest actors will be brought together, and the legitimate drama will be presented in a manner never before thought of.

JULIUS CÆSAR

was the play presented. James H. Murdoch as Marcus Antonius, carried off the honors of the evening, and at the conclusion of the action at the grave of Cæsar he was called before the curtain twice. It was the crowning triumph of the old actor's life. One gentleman was heard to say, "Never before has such elegance been heard in this hall except when Robin Ingelsoll mimicked James G. Elaine for President."
